

Mascot Leans a
Lesson
By:Matthew
March 2015

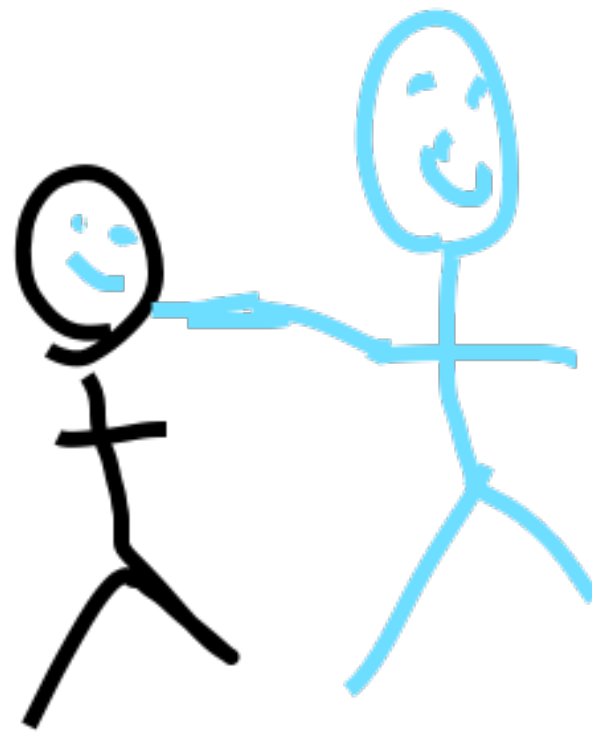

As the mascot walked into the court the old lights shined into his biggest smile. The court smelled like sweaty shoes. Squeak squeak the shoes went on the wooden floor.

"Mascot! Mascot!" A kid said. "I want to see you without you're mask on."
"Ok here you go. Wait, I can't get it off!"
The mascot replied.

"I will try to take it off after the game," he said to the kid. During the game the mascot kept thinking about how easily his mask came off before. This worried him.

He put the thoughts behind him and cheered on the team like a kangaroo. Later after the game the mascot saw the kid and stopped him.

"You still want to see me without my mask on?"

"Ya."

"Ok."

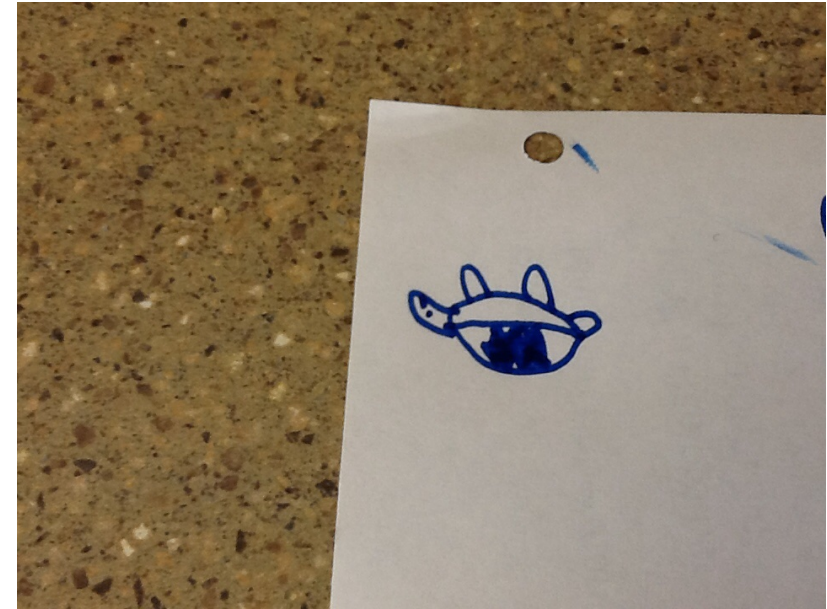

"Ahh! Ahh!" The mascot said trying to take his mask off. He lost his balance and was falling over.

Spilling people's drinks on fans nearby, a man caught the mascot trying to take his mask off before he fell down.

"Thank you."

"I saw you trying to take your mask off. I have some scissors, would you like to cut you're mask off. But he couldn't cut it off by himself.

He looked like a turtle flipped on his back trying to get up. The man and kid helped the mascot cut the mask off. After all the struggling a crowd drew near.

And they all cheered once it was off. And everyone got to see his handsome face. Then the mascot got home after a long day he tried to take white boots off and the zipper was stuck.

