

Amanda Builds Up
Her Problem

Amanda put her snow gear on in a blink of an eye and one big smile on her face, and as she was going to walk outside...

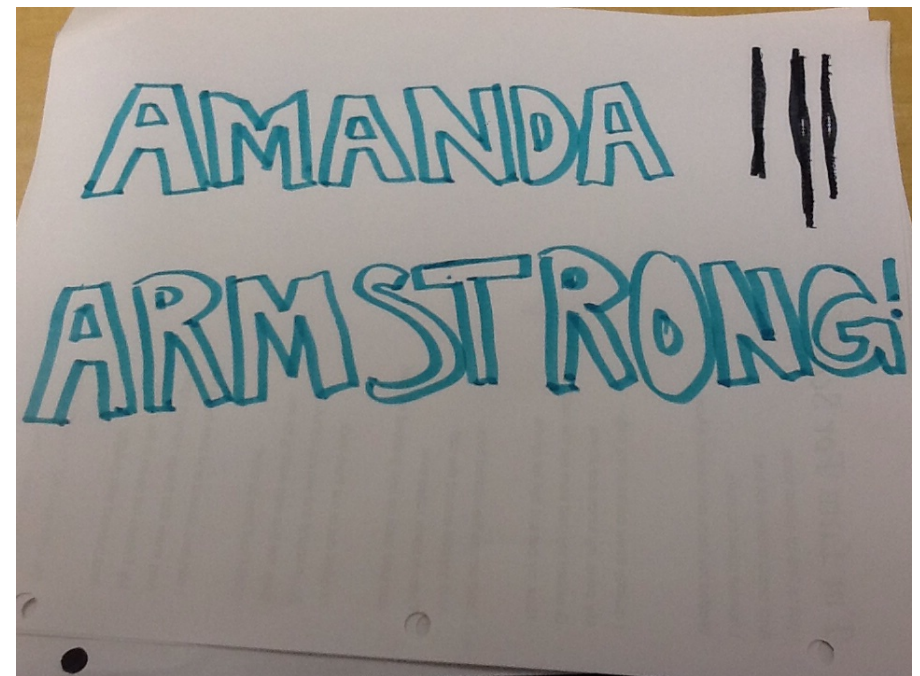

she heard "Sweetie wait!" her mom interrupted "You have homework to do!" That smile that she had on her face, quickly faded away "Ugh!" she sighed.

So then she was doing her homework and she thought "Maybe I can get out of doing my homework?" she thought for a minute, "If I hurry and get all the answers wrong, then I can go outside."

But before Amanda could even touch her snow gear again her mom yelled "AMANDA ARMSTRONG YOU COME HERE THIS MINUTE!!!!!!!"

She thought to her self as she stood up "I knew I shouldn't of rushed on my homework." "Amanda you got every answer wrong, and your hand writing is terrible." "UUUU-MMMMM" she stuttered. "You're going to have to do this all over again." her mom said angrily.

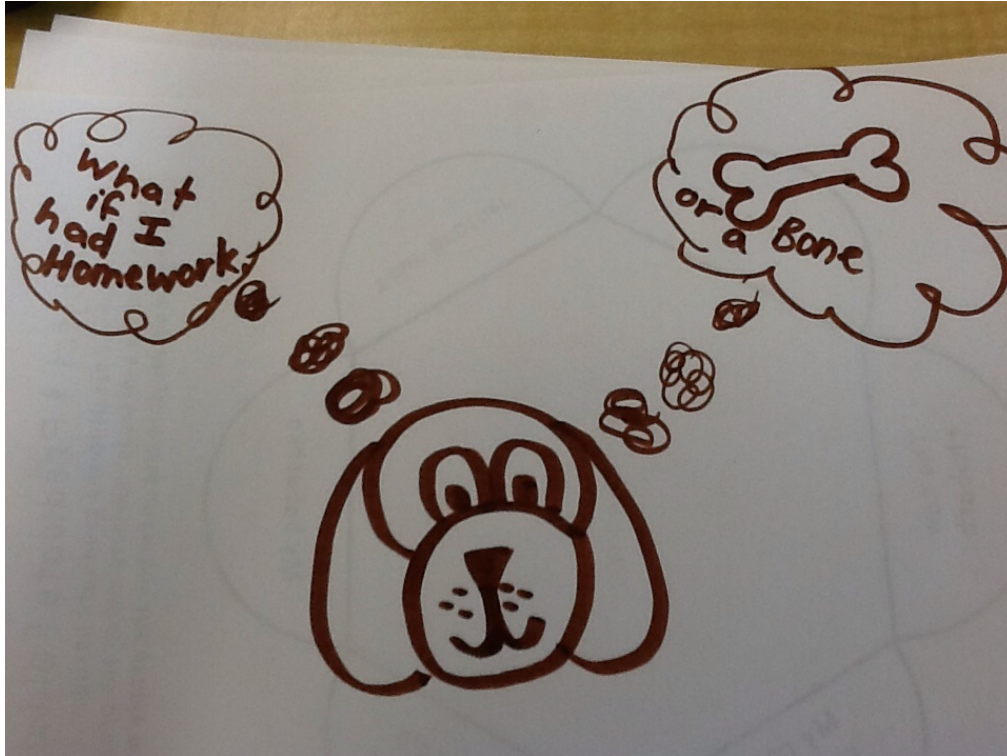

So this time she did it neat and took her time, and this time she got all the answers right and let her mom check it.

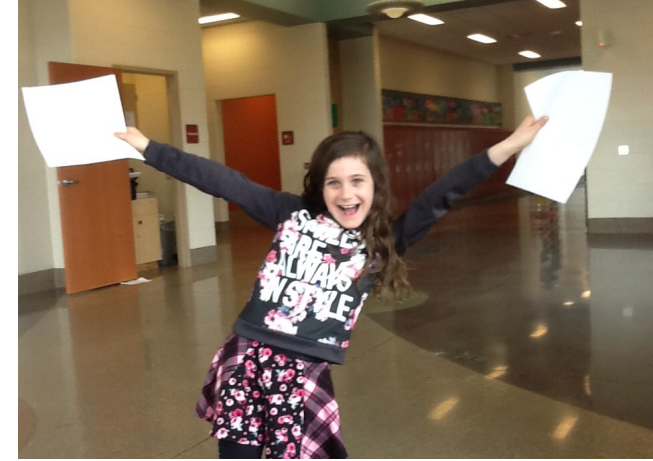

"This time you got all the answers right, and your hand writing is very neat." Her mom said in a out of breathe from yelling voice. "Now can I go outside?" "Yes." "Thank you so much!" "You're welcome sweetie."

And then with her dog, she built snowmans and snowdogs, and she thought "I wish dogs have homework."

Like Amanda, next time always take your time and do quality work and always do what you have to do, before you do something that you want to do.

And then the next day she had to study, but she wanted to go sledding, and the day started all over again.
